STATEMENT

35 This bill requires businesses and public entities that compile or 36 maintain computerized records that include information that would 37 permit access to an online account to disclose to consumers if there 38 has been a breach of security of that information. Under current 39 law, businesses and public entities are required to disclose breaches 40 involving personal information such as Social Security numbers, 41 driver's license numbers, or credit or debit card numbers, in 42 combination with any required security code, access code, or 43 password that would permit access to an individual's financial 44 account. This bill adds user names and email addresses, in 45 combination with any password or security question and answer
46 that would permit access to an online account to this list of breaches 47 requiring disclosure.

1 Protecting the security of online accounts is important for 2 consumers, as a breach of security of these accounts can lead to the 3 compromise of personal information and subject consumers to 4 identity theft. The bill confronts this problem by requiring 5 businesses and public entities that compile or maintain 6 computerized records including online account access information
7 to disclose to consumers when a breach has occurred. This will 8 allow consumers to change their online account information quickly 9 following a breach, and put consumers on notice to monitor for 10 potential identity theft.
