STATEMENT

This bill permits corporations to hold shareholders’ meetings in part or solely by means of remote communication. Pursuant to current law, corporations are permitted to allow shareholders to participate in shareholders’ meetings by means of remote communication, but the meetings are required to be held at a physical location. Under the bill, during a state of emergency declared by the Governor, a meeting of shareholders may be held by means of remote communication to the extent the board authorizes and adopts guidelines and procedures governing such a meeting.

The bill also provides that shareholders participating in a meeting of shareholders by means of remote communication are deemed to be present in person and are entitled to vote at the meeting, regardless of whether the meeting is held at a designated place or solely by means of remote communication.

This bill will give corporations greater flexibility in how they hold their shareholders’ meetings. Remote meetings can offer broader accessibility to shareholders and increase shareholder participation. It also offers corporations a potential cost savings, as the expense of meetings held solely by means of remote communication is typically less than the expense of meetings held at a designated place.
