STATEMENT

26 This bill addresses the problem of "spousal impoverishment" under 27 the Medicaid program when one spouse is institutionalized and the 28 other remains in the community.

29 The bill directs the State Medicaid program to adopt options
30 permitted under the federal "Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 31 1988" which allow a State to increase the amount of resources and the 32 monthly income that a spouse living in the community may retain while 33 the other spouse is in an institution and qualifies for Medicaid to the 34 maximum amount permitted by federal law. In 1992, the federal law 35 permits states to allow the community spouse to maintain a maximum

1 resource allowance up to $68,700 and a maximum monthly income up
2 to $1,718, subject to annual indexing. At present, the State allows the 3 community spouse to retain $1,149 in monthly income and to retain 4 the greater of $13,740 or one-half of resources up to $68,700. The 5 State could raise the allowed amounts by submitting an amendment to 6 its State plan for Medicaid, to the federal government for its approval.

7 Accordingly, this bill directs the Commissioner of Human Services
8 to amend the State plan for Medicaid to provide that the community 9 spouse's share of the couple's resources and monthly income levels will 10 be the maximum amount permitted by federal law.
