Introduction

A grand total of 834 projects were made in New Jersey during 2008, including 90 feature films, 4 movies for television and mini-series, 172 television series and specials, 23 music videos, a record 231 industrial, documentary, educational and short films, 300 commercials and 14 webcasts. This production work generated $114 million for the New Jersey economy.

Since 1978, the Commission’s first year of operation, a grand total of 15,192 productions have been filmed in New Jersey, enhancing the local economy by over $1.35 billion.

The Commission’s annual budget is currently $395,000.
Chairman’s Report

It has been said that the film and television industry is recession proof, and that is at least partially true. Even in stressful economic times such as these, we still go to the movies, much as people did during the Great Depression in the 1930s. And certainly, we spend many hours watching television and DVDs, playing video games, and fully enjoying the multi-channel, multimedia universe that is at our fingertips.

Perhaps the need for entertainment is even greater during recessionary periods, when we seek temporary escape from our troubles and concerns. Movies and television are comparatively inexpensive outlets, and so an increase in box office receipts or movie rentals during an economic downturn is really not such an anomaly. In fact, it makes a lot of sense.

And so the studios and networks must produce enough product to satisfy ever increasing demand. This is certainly good news for the production industry, and keeps the cameras rolling at a steady pace.

However, the industry is not entirely immune to the realities of today’s severely weakened economy. Studios and networks have been given a strong mandate to do more with less, and are employing cost-cutting measures whenever and wherever possible. Moreover, smaller independent companies are having difficulty borrowing money and attracting investors in a tight credit market, and foundation grants for producers of public television are becoming increasingly scarce.

These realities compel production companies to film in areas that offer generous incentives to filmmakers. Aesthetic concerns have become secondary to financial considerations. Directors are being told to “make the location work” artistically if it makes sense budget-wise.

New Jersey has long been a location of choice for producers throughout the world. They come here to take advantage of the state’s rich talent pool, abundant variety of locations, cooperative attitude and convenience to major metropolitan areas. But the biggest incentive, in recent times, has been New Jersey’s 20% tax credit, which enables filmmakers to maximize their production dollars.

The state’s tax credit program has been an unqualified success, as detailed in another section of this report. This incentive has enabled the Motion Picture and Television Commission to lure dozens of features films and several television shows to the state. But the program has significant limitations, due to the very low annual cap ($10 million per year). We are convinced that a higher cap will help us attract far more productions, and as a result, more revenue for the state and jobs for our residents.

The word “despite” in the beginning of an annual report usually augurs bad news in the pages to come. But that is not the case with this report. Despite the economy, and the limitations of our incentive programs, New Jersey continues to attract a great deal of film and television production. But we can do more, much more. If we are proactive in the present, we will assure the future health of the state’s production industry.

Producers and directors want to make movies in New Jersey. The Motion Picture and Television Commission must work to make it fully feasible. And we intend to do so.
Executive Director's Report

There was an abundance of motion picture and television production in New Jersey during 2008, although it was an unusually challenging year. The state hosted a bumper crop of features from January until June, as production companies sought to finish their projects before the expiration of the Screen Actors Guild contract. Movie production slowed considerably in the second half of the year, in part because of the ongoing contract negotiations. The continued weakening of the United States economy also played a role in this decline. And the limitations of New Jersey's tax credit program, with its comparatively low annual cap, also had an impact, particularly in regards to attracting big budget features and television series.

Nevertheless, an impressive array of productions were made in New Jersey, which is a testament to the state's resilience in the toughest of times, and the production community's strong desire to work here. The Commission's many years of dedicated service to the industry, the positive attributes of the state, and our ongoing efforts to market these strengths, are paying significant dividends in the current economic environment.

A total of 90 feature films were made in New Jersey during the course of the year, some partially and others in their entirety. Heading the list is "The Wrestler," director Darren Aronofsky's highly acclaimed drama about a faded professional wrestler who is forced to retire, but finds his quest for a new life outside the ring a dispiriting struggle. Mickey Rourke and Marisa Tomei both received Oscar nominations for their performances in this gritty tale from Fox Searchlight Pictures, shot in Garfield, Hasbrouck Heights, Bayonne, Hoboken, Hazlet, Rahway and Roselle Park.

Alec Baldwin, Timothy Hutton, Cynthia Nixon, Kieran Culkin and Rory Culkin head the stellar cast of "Lymelife," a comedy-drama shot in Franklin Lakes, Ho-Ho-Kus, Oakland, Ramsey, Montclair, Jersey City, Old Bridge and Roselle Park. Derick Martini directed this story of a family unit buckling under the pressure of a failing marriage. Screen Media Films is the distributor.

"Cadillac Records" is director Darnell Martin's well-crafted tribute to the early days of Chess Records, chronicling the rise of the company and its artists. 1950's Chicago is meticulously recreated using carefully chosen locations in Newark, Harrison, West Orange and Clifton. Adrien Brody, Jeffrey Wright, Beyonce Knowles, Gabrielle Union, Cedric The Entertainer, Columbus Short, Emmanuelle Chriqui and Mos Def offer nuanced performances, and skillfully evoke the memorable music of the period in this TriStar Pictures release.

Another music-driven feature, "The Perfect Age Of Rock 'n Roll," stars Peter Fonda, Lauren Holly, Kevin Zegers, Lukas Haas, Ruby Dee, Jason Ritter, Taryn Manning, Aimee Teagarden and Billy Dee Williams. A rock star retreats to his hometown after his sophomore album flops in this Red Hawk Films production. Scott D. Rosenbaum directed on locations in Montclair, Newark, Sayreville, Marlboro, Middletown, Montgomery, Sparta, Westfield, Franklin Twp. and Phillipsburg.

"The Messenger" was filmed throughout North Jersey, in Garfield, New Hanover, Jersey City, Secaucus, Edison, Piscataway, South Plainfield, Morristown, Paterson, West Milford, Watchung, Elizabeth, Plainfield, Scotch Plains and Union. Ben Foster, Woody Harrelson, Jena Malone, Samantha Morton, Steve Buscemi, Eamonn Walker and Sam Kitchin star in this story about an American soldier who struggles with an ethical dilemma when he becomes involved with the widow of a fallen officer. Oren Moverman directs this romantic drama from The Mark Gordon Company and Reason Pictures.
A mysterious love triangle leads to a tragic shooting. Months later, eight members of a MySpace-esque chat room are being gruesomely murdered in the privacy of their own homes. This is the premise of "iMurders," a thriller written and directed by Robbie Bryan. Gabrielle Anwar, William Forsythe, Charles Durning, Billy Dee Williams, Tony Todd and Frank Grillo head the cast of this Good To Be Seen Films/Scroll Down Films production, shot mainly in Hoboken.

Princeton University serves as a principal location for Paramount Pictures' big budget action-adventure "Transformers: Revenge Of The Fallen." Michael Bay directs this highly anticipated sequel about an epic battle for the universe. Shia LaBeouf and Megan Fox head the cast.

Bloomfield, Maplewood, Nutley, Clifton and Paterson serve as backdrops for "Split Ends," a comedy about a feisty hairdresser who squares off with an unscrupulous developer, and faces up to the uncertainties of her own life in a small, New Jersey town. Corinna May, Lawton Paseka, Vincent Pastore, Paul Borgese and Peter McRobbie appear in this Pack Pocket Productions film, directed by Emmy winner Dorothy Lyman.

Pierce Brosnan and Susan Sarandon visited Asbury Park, Bay Head, Mantoloking and Point Pleasant Beach to shoot scenes for "The Greatest," a drama from Senator Distribution. Shauna Feste wrote and directed this story of a troubled teenage girl, and a family that is trying to get over the loss of their son.

A woman seduced by the ghost of a Civil War soldier creates an eternal love in the "The Undying." Roscommon Films produced this paranormal thriller shot entirely on location in Bethlehem Twp., Stockton, Dover, East Hanover and Cranford. Steven Peros directs a cast that includes Robin Weigert, Anthony Carrigan, J.O. Sanders, Sybil Temtchine and Wes Studi.

Scenes from Universal Pictures' "Duplicity" were filmed in Newark and North Brunswick. Clive Owen, Julia Roberts, Tom Wilkinson and Paul Giamatti are featured in this romantic thriller, about a pair of corporate spies who share a steamy past, and hook up to pull off the ultimate con job on their respective bosses. Tony Gilroy wrote the script and directed.

John Shea heads the cast of "Achchamundu! Achchamundu!," a feature from Project East co-starring Andrea Harrison, Sneha, Prasanna and Vasanth Santosham. Arun Vaidyanathan wrote and directed this thriller about a family that seems to be living the American dream, until a stranger enters their lives. South Brunswick, Edison, Hamilton Twp., Washington Twp., West Milford, South Plainfield and Hackettstown locations were used.

"The Rebound" concerns a single mom living in New York City, who captivates her new neighbor, a much younger man. Catherine Zeta-Jones, Justin Bartha and Steve Antonucci appear in this romantic comedy from The Weinstein Company. Scenes were filmed in East Rutherford, Fort Lee and Newark, under the direction of Bart Freundlich.

New Jersey Transit and Hoboken locations can be seen in Columbia Pictures' "Julie and Julia," starring Meryl Streep, Amy Adams and Stanley Tucci. Nora Ephron wrote and directed this biographical drama about renowned television chef Julia Child.

Stewart Raffill wrote and directed "Standing Ovation," shot in Atlantic City, Linwood, Somers Point, Cape May Point, Lower Twp., Ocean City and Wildwood. This musical from Kenilworth Film Productions stars Al Sapienza and Michael Pericoloso.

"Baby Mama" stars Tina Fey, Amy Poehler and Greg Kinnear in a comedy about a single businesswoman who dreams of having a baby and, discovering she is infertile, hires a working class woman to be her unlikely surrogate. Michael McCullers wrote and directed this Universal Pictures release, scenes from which were done in East Hanover.

The former members of a college secret society get together ten years later in "Reunion," written and directed by Alan Hruska. This drama from Reunion Productions features Christopher McDonald, Cynthia Stevenson and Jamey Sheridan. It was filmed partly in Florham Park and Morristown.
Sally Kirkland, Rosemary Gore and Jeannie Evans head the cast of “Oak Hill,” a drama written and directed by Peter LaVilla. This East In Motion Pictures production tells the story of three women from disparate backgrounds, who are forced to live together in a New Jersey shelter. Filming took place predominantly in Guttenberg and Union City.

“Ice Grill, U.S.A.,” a stark examination of the pursuit of the American dream, is set in the multicultural landscape of Atlantic City. This Enlightened Party Multimedia production is directed by Mark Bernardi, and stars Connor Fox, Denise Ramirez and Tyler Noble.

Springfield can be seen in the Cornfield Productions/Mandate Pictures thriller “Peacock.” Ellen Page, Susan Sarandon, Cillian Murphy, Josh Lucas and Bill Pullman are featured in this tale of a train accident in rural Nebraska, which gradually unveils a mystery involving a local bank clerk. Michael Lander co-wrote and directed.

A brother and sister are evicted from their home and then embark on a road trip of self-discovery in “The Sunset Sky.” Olivier Bernier wrote and directed this drama with a cast that includes Caitlin Brown, Joel Brady, Don Meehan and Sal Rendino. A Finite Media LLC production, it was shot almost entirely in Delaware Twp., East Amwell, Flemington, Frenchtown, Kingwood Twp., Lebanon, Readington and Paterson.

50 Cent returned to New Jersey to write, direct and star in “Before I Self Destruct.” Vivendi Entertainment is releasing this coming of age story about an inner-city youth raised by a hardworking single mother. Shooting took place entirely in Paterson, Wayne and Cedar Grove. Clifton Powell, Ira Berkowitz, Gabriel Ellis and Carlos Franco co-star.

THR Productions’ “Sculpture” was filmed in Chester, East Hanover and Randolph. Misty Mundae, Raine Brown, Dustin Kerns and Alan Rowe Kelly appear in this psychological horror film about an aspiring artist who returns home after the death of her father, only to find that haunting memories of her repressed childhood await her. Peter Jace lone directs.

Linda Yellen co-wrote and directed “The Last Film Festival,” a sharp satire about a third rate film festival populated by fading and up-and-coming stars. Boonton locations were used in this ensemble comedy, featuring Chris Kattan, JoBeth Williams, Leelee Sobieski, Dennis Hopper, Jacqueline Bisset, Joseph Cross, Noah Fleiss and Katrina Bowden.

“Handsome Harry” is the story of an ex-Navy man carrying out the last wish of a dying shipmate, by renewing contact with old friends to break the code of silence over a mysterious, long-buried crime. Bette Gordon directs this Worldview Entertainment production, starring John Savage, Jamey Sheridan, Steve Buscemi, Aidan Quinn and Campbell Scott. Shooting took place in Elizabeth.

Steven Soderbergh directs “The Girlfriend Experience,” a drama set in the days leading up to the 2008 Presidential election, centering on a high-end Manhattan call girl juggling the challenges of her boyfriend, her clients, and her work. Sasha Grey, Chris Santos and Peter Zizzo head the cast of this 2929 Entertainment production, filmed in Fort Lee, Ramsey and Teterboro.

Asbury Park, Keansburg, Neptune, Sandy Hook, Denville, Lincoln Park, Montville, Point Pleasant, Seaside Heights and Paterson provide the backgrounds for “Gallery Of Fear.” Debbie Rouchon, Raine Brown and Alan Rowe Kelly star in this horror anthology from Southpaw Picture, directed by Kelly and Anthony G. Sumner.

Four telefilms and mini-series were made in New Jersey during 2008. “Brick City,” is a documentary series produced by Forrest Whitaker and Mark Levin, featuring Mayor Corey Booker. Sundance Channel is televising this highly anticipated examination of the challenges of urban development faced by the City of Newark.

“Inside: Night Shift—Repo Man” is a documentary series from Stick Figure Productions. The show follows repossession agents Mark Castelluccio and Larry Pittman of TMA Recovery, as they roam the night with a literal “license to steal.” From retrieving seven-ton semis to hunting down fraudulent “gypsy” cases, these 20-year veterans use every means at their disposal to bring home their client’s property. Filming for this National Geographic Channel program took place in Newark and Montclair.

Englewood served as the location for “Down and Dirty With Jim Norton,” a four episode series showcasing up-and-coming comics. HBO aired this Irwin Entertainment production, also starring Lemmy Kilmister, Andy Andrist, Jason Rouse and Jacob Siros.

Autistic twins Flo Lyman and Kay Lyman are profiled in “Beyond Ordinary: Twin Savants.” This Somethin’ Else/Tiger Aspect Productions documentary was produced for Discovery Health Channel, and shot in the Lymans’ home town of Iselin.

Television production continued to thrive in the Garden State, as New Jersey played host to many popular shows and series throughout the year. “Law & Order: Special Victims Unit” continues to be one of the highest rated programs on network television. The tenth season of Dick Wolf’s powerful and controversial dramatic series, about an elite squad of NYPD detectives who investigate sexually related crimes, was shot in NBC/Universal’s North Bergen Studio, and on location in Alpine and Rutherford. Christopher Meloni, Mariska Hargitay, Richard Belzer, Dann Florek, Ice-T and B.D. Wong head the cast.

The Children’s Television Workshop built a small studio in Newark, in order to film a full season of the newly revived edition of their classic series, “The Electric Company.” Thirty-two years after the power was first turned on, a natural foods diner opens and becomes the hangout for four kids who have superhuman powers with words. With the help of a beatboxing short-order cook and a lot of music, the kids keep their neighborhood safe from troublemakers. This PBS series stars Ashley Austin Morris, L. Steven Taylor, Jenni Barber, Tyler Bunch, Steven Freitas, Josh Segarra and Ricky Smith. Location filming also took place in Newark, Union Beach and Paterson.

The venerable CBS daytime drama “The Guiding Light” has been airing since 1952. In recent years, the producers have chosen to widen the show’s appeal to contemporary audiences by making it less stage-bound, and filming more on location. New Jersey has become the show’s back lot, with shooting taking place in Peapack-Gladstone and vicinity on a regular basis. Kim Zimmer, Robert Newman, Beth Chamberlain, Ron Raines, Bradley Cole and Beth Ehlers are part of the large cast.

“As The World Turns,” another CBS daytime drama, has been in production almost as long, having first been telecast in 1956. Maura West, Michael Park, Roger Howarth, Terri Colombino, Marie Wilson, Grayson McCouch and Kelly Menighan Hensley are current cast members in this show about the trials and tribulations of residents in the fictional town of Oakdale. This series, too, uses Garden State locations on a continuing basis. This past year, filming took place in Clinton, Flemington, Franklin, Frenchtown, Hampton, Paterson, Union and Closter.

The ever popular “One Life To Live” is taped here on a periodic basis. The residents of the fictional town of Llanview come to life in this ABC daytime drama, recently shot in Alpine and Seaside Heights. Michael Easton, Trevor St. John, Kristen Alderson, Kassie DePaiva, Melissa Archer, John-Paul Lavoisier and Robin Strasser are featured.

“CSI:NY” came to New Jersey, to film key scenes in Liberty State Park. Gary Sinise, Melina Kanakaredes and Carmine Giovinazzo star in this hit CBS series from creators Ann Donahue, Carol Mendelsohn and Anthony E. Zuiker.

Scenes from the critically acclaimed series “Friday Night Lights” were shot in Madison. This NBC/Universal production, created by Peter Berg, concerns the exploits of a high school football team in a town where football is seemingly the only thing that matters.

ABC’s “Dancing With The Stars” waltzed into Ridgefield, Nutley and Bergenfield. Two Nutley children, successful contestants on the show, were profiled at home and at practice in their dance studio.
Several episodes of A&E’s popular series “Watching The Detectives” were filmed in Rutherford, Newark and Paterson. This show from Kaufman Productions features detectives recounting their most stirring experiences on the beat. Stylized dramatizations enhance their stories, providing the American public with their first exposure to these provocative and rousing tales of crime.

Reality television is as prevalent and popular as ever, and New Jersey welcomed a cornucopia of these shows throughout 2008. Heading the list is the wildly popular “Real Housewives Of New Jersey,” which was a ratings sensation. Bravo’s deliberately provocative peek at a group of married women living in the Jersey suburbs was filmed in Franklin Lakes, Clifton, Montville, Oakland, Paterson, Totowa, Wayne, West Orange, Atlantic City and Mantua.

Other reality shows paying a visit to the state include FOX Television’s “Kitchen Nightmares” (Fair Lawn, Cranbury) and Hell’s Kitchen (Atlantic City), both featuring renowned and temperamental chef Gordon Ramsay; Style Network’s “Split Ends” (Cedar Grove); MTV’s “My Super Sweet 16” (Fort Lee, Clifton, Maywood), “The Real World: Brooklyn” (Atlantic City) and “Run’s House” (Ridgewood, Upper Saddle River); WETV’s “Bridezillas” (Princeton, Dover Twp., Bernards Twp., Sparta); VH1’s “I Want To Work For Diddy” (Teterboro, Bass River); E! Entertainment’s “Clean House” (Piscataway); Travel Channel’s “Ghost Adventures” (Cedar Grove); and the Israeli version of “Wife Swap” (Newark, Orange).

The 23 music videos produced in New Jersey in 2008 feature some very prominent artists in the recording industry. Alicia Keys filmed “Teenage Love Affair” in Madison; Motorhead did “Rock Out” in Asbury Park; The Clique Girlz shot “Incredible” in Wildwood; Testament made “Henchmen Ride” in Sayreville; and Vampire Weekend used Manasquan as a background for “Cape Cod.”

The list of industrial, documentary, educational and short films made last year is typically extensive and varied. Corporate films were produced for such companies and organizations as Merck, Sanofi-Aventis, Johnson & Johnson, Partnership For A Drug Free America and the American Cancer Society. Jim Parker produced two documentaries, “Elijah’s Promise,” about the New Brunswick soup kitchen, and “TASK,” about the Trenton area soup kitchen. A concert video for My Chemical Romance was filmed in Hoboken. And numerous shorts were completed throughout the state, including “Paper Dreams” (Gloucester, Runnemed), “The Sun Is Not Enough” (Norwood, Newark), “Cranberry Bog Tavern” (Hammonton), “Bad Kids” (Ridgewood), “Final Retribution” (Hoboken), “The Roofer” (Wayne) and “Exit 102” (Asbury Park).

The 300 commercials and stills filmed in New Jersey during the past 12 months advertise such companies and brands as AT&T, Cinemax, Chuck-E-Cheese’s, Brawny Paper Towels, Pampers, Walmart, Fisher-Price, IAMS Pet Food, Boar’s Head, Nintendo Wii, Ikea, Nike, Met-Life, Volkswagen, Cascade, Bud Light, US Cellular, Six Flags, Wendy’s, ESPN, and Alka Seltzer.

Economic Impact

New Jersey and rest of the nation endured substantial economic challenges throughout 2008, and by year’s end we were deeply rooted in a full blown recession. But even in a difficult time such as this, motion picture and television production continued to thrive in the state, generating considerable revenue for our businesses and creating significant employment for our residents.

A grand total of 834 projects were made in New Jersey during the year, enhancing the local economy by $114 million. This revenue figure represents direct expenditures by production companies for the goods and services they procured in the state.

Filmmakers working on location have a wide array of requirements that must be met locally: food, lodging, gas, lumber, hardware, clothing, auto rentals, medical, legal and accounting services, and much, much more. Production companies will use local sources in order to meet these needs, because it is usually cheaper and always more convenient. Just as importantly, New Jersey’s economic incentive programs—the 20% Tax Credit program, and the 7% sales tax exemption—compel them to spend their money in-state. Thus, a feature film or television program filming in a given town can be a bonanza for local businesses and, in many cases, residents.

The Motion Picture and Television Commission’s Production Services Directory is available on-line at the Commission web site, and contains a comprehensive list of businesses that cater partly or exclusively to the film and television industry. Currently, the Directory contains 787 listings in 209 categories, which reflects the ever-increasing size and diversity of New Jersey’s production industry. Thousands of other businesses and individuals in the state profit from film production as well, of course, depending on the needs of particular projects. On any given day, filmmakers might be seeking out antique dealers, carpet installers, limousine services, hot air balloons, jewelers, dry cleaners—the list is virtually endless.

A closer look at specific productions helps to illustrate the substantial economic impact to be derived from film production. The Paramount Pictures blockbuster “Transformers: Revenge Of The Fallen” was filmed in Princeton for five days. During that brief period of time, the production company spent $325,000 in the area, broken down as follows:

- Hotels: $170,000
- Local Hires: $15,000
- Catering: $50,000
- Local Shopping: $5,000
- Local Security: $15,000
- Location Fees: $50,000
- Production Supplies: $20,000

The independent film “The Greatest,” with Pierce Brosnan and Susan Sarandon, was shot on location in Asbury Park, Point Pleasant, Bay Head and Mantoloking for three days. The local expenditures of this modestly budgeted film amounted to $120,000, spent thusly:

- Local Crew Transportation: $2,000
- Hotels/Housing: $15,000
- Local Crew and Extras: $9,000
- Local Spending/Per Diem: $7,000
- Police/Security: $5,000
- Local Gas and Tolls: $5,000
- NJ Catering: $20,000
- Set Decorating Supplies: $5,000
- Local Picture Cars: $2,000
- Local Fees and Permits: $50,000

Clearly, production companies spend a great deal of money, whether they are working on location or in-studio. And they tend to be very philanthropic as well. Many a producer has made contributions to local civic and charitable organizations as a way of thanking cities and towns for their cooperation and assistance. Roscommon Pictures filmed scenes from “The Undying” in Cranford recently, and contributed $500 to the local police department, dedicated to the purchase of body armor for police officers. ESW Productions shot an ad for Samsung in Weehawken, and gave a $1,000 donation to the Bambino Little League. This kind of generosity is quite typical, and goes a long way towards maintaining good will between film companies and the communities in which they work.

Productions of every size and scope are produced in the state, and all of them enhance New Jersey’s economy to varying degrees. The regulations of New Jersey’s tax credit program for filmmakers require a very accurate accounting of money spent here by productions applying for this incentive. During the 2008 production year, eleven projects were made in New Jersey under the program. All told, these films and television programs poured some $76 million into state coffers. The breakdown is as follows:

The tax credit program has been very successful. The program has an annual cap of $10 million, and there remains a queue of eager applicants. Filmmakers are spending larger portions of their budgets in the state, in order to take full advantage of the incentive. And New Jersey is enjoying a robust return on investment, as more dollars are spent and more employment is created.

New Jersey has yet to commission an economic impact study of its tax credit program for filmmakers, but studies have been undertaken in other states. An Ernst and Young study of the New York incentive reports a 190% return on investment for the state. A study of the Pennsylvania tax credit reveals a 500% return on investment for that state. Massachusetts also calculates a 500% rate of return, as detailed in their recent Massachusetts Production Coalition report.

New Jersey’s tax credit program for filmmakers is a critical part of the state’s overall effort to boost an industry that continues to grow and strengthen. This is strongly evidenced by a statistical report from the United States Bureau Of Labor, that ranks New Jersey fifth nationwide in the amount of people employed in the field of motion picture and video production, and fourth in the amount of people employed in the field of motion picture and video distribution. These are very impressive figures, but not wholly surprising when one considers that New Jersey has ranked as high as fifth nationwide in total amount of annual film and television production taking place.
New Jersey’s production community is a growing economic force in the state, as the statistics clearly indicate. But there are other important reasons for fostering this industry. Filmmaking creates many intangible benefits for the state, advantages that cannot be measured in terms of dollars and cents. It insures continued exposure of our cities and suburbs, tourist sites, businesses, recreational areas and cultural centers. Images of these areas and structures are presented on theatrical and television screens throughout the world, creating interest in New Jersey. This promotes tourism and business attraction and retention, and heightens the value and attractiveness of local real estate. Such exposure also instills within our residents a deep sense of pride in their communities. It is flattering to have your town chosen as the site for a major motion picture, a network television series, or even a national television spot.

Film and television production also attracts many famous and influential celebrities and artists to the state, luminaries who experience the beauty and excitement of New Jersey and “spread the word across the land.” This includes many of the stars who visited the Garden State last year alone:

Production Services

The competition to attract motion picture and television production is fierce. All 50 states are working vigorously to lure this lucrative industry to their areas. Additionally, the Canadian provinces, Mexico, Australia, and countries in Europe, Asia and the rest of the world are vying for a piece of the production pie. It is truly a buyer’s market for filmmakers, and any locality looking to host film crews must be prepared to offer a very attractive overall package to producers.

Historically, New Jersey has been a highly desirable destination for production companies. Producers, directors, performers and crew members want to work here. It is the job of the Motion Picture and Television Commission to make the state a viable location for filmmaking in every way possible. And the Commissioners and staff of our agency have done so very successfully.

New Jersey has the locations that filmmakers need. Big cities, manicured suburbs, mountains, farmland, pineland and the state’s lengthy and famous shoreline are all readily available. These sites are simple to reach, readily available and easily affordable. Need a baseball stadium? You can find them north to south. A Victorian community? New Jersey has some of the finest in the country. Everyday locations such as houses, schools, shopping centers, offices, restaurants, factories and parks are available just minutes from New York or Philadelphia. Something more exotic? How about a blimp hangar, a wild west town, an aircraft carrier, a casino, a drag strip, a closed mine or a rodeo? They can all be found in the compact, easily accessible area called the Garden State.

New Jersey’s topography is as varied as the many ethnic groups that comprise its population. The state’s locations form a cross-section of America, just as our residents represent a cross-section of the world. Years ago, the Motion Picture and Television Commission promoted New Jersey as “American In Miniature,” a moniker that is just as fitting today as it was in the 1980s. Filmmakers can obtain a remarkable variety of looks within a 25, 50 or 75 mile radius of Manhattan. No wonder so many “road movies” have been filmed here, such as “Perfect Age Of Rock ‘n’ Roll,” “Transamerica” and “Earthly Possessions.”

The Commission’s location library contains tens of thousands of photographs depicting these sites. Location scouts may visit the agency’s office and browse through over 22 filing cabinets worth of photos. Many location shots have been digitized and can be sent instantly to filmmakers around the world. So, too, are hundreds of locations lists with information on sites of interest, and contact names and numbers; everything from general stores to museums, bowling alleys to trailer parks. When you work in New Jersey, location scouting can be quick, easy and comprehensive with the help of the Commission resources and staff.

These very same staff members will assist production companies in the securing of such locations. The Commission has an extensive liaison network throughout the state, and can quickly determine the appropriate individuals needed for clearances. Staffers work with companies every step of the way, from pre-production to wrap, and gladly arrange for and sit in on meetings with municipal, county, state and federal officials as the needs arise. Our goal is to make the location scouting process as pleasant, efficient and economical as possible.

Staff members also assist producers in the acquisition of required products and services, and research any needs, whether commonplace or extraordinary. The Commission maintains an on-line Production Services Directory, updated daily, that makes much of this information accessible 24/7.
Our agency will also assist in the procuring of necessary licenses and permits, and insure that production companies work in compliance with relevant municipal, state and federal laws. Whatever the need—permits for locations, theatrical firearms, explosives or child labor; clearances for use of highways or environmental issues—the Commission will offer critical assistance and direction to make the filmmaking process quick and easy. This is a great relief to producers who are spending tens of thousands of dollars a day or more, and want to keep the drama on-screen, not behind the scenes.

The Motion Picture and Television Commission’s web site is another invaluable tool for filmmakers. The site is not flashy, but it is carefully and intelligently designed. Information is easily located and downloadable. The site, which is constantly being revised and improved, is visited by thousands of people every month. There are pages devoted to rules and regulations, laws and permits, production services and location information, weather and topographical data, historical information about New Jersey’s film industry, casting notices and bulletins of interest to the film community, projects currently in production and much more. The site can be accessed at:

www.njfilm.org

In this age of economic incentives, one of the most important services offered by the Commission is the guidance we provide in regards to the Tax Credit Program for Filmmakers, and the 7% Sale Tax Exemption Program offered by the state. Staff members meet with producers, explain the programs in detail, assist with the application process, and continue to provide help and information every step of the way. Again, our aim is to keep things as simple and readily understandable as possible.

The best advertisement for Commission, and the State of New Jersey, is a satisfied customer. Our staff of seasoned professionals, all with many years experience in production and state government, works with diligence and determination to insure that filmmakers will want to return to the state year after year.
Internship Program

The Motion Picture and Television Commission’s internship program is open to all New Jersey residents currently attending colleges and graduate schools. It is also available to select New Jersey high school students who have demonstrated exceptional maturity and high achievement.

Eleven individuals were awarded internships in 2008, and afforded the opportunity to work in the Commission office and broaden their knowledge of the pre-production and production stages of filmmaking. In addition, these students had the opportunity to visit the sets of films and television programs shooting in the state and, in some cases, to work on projects.

Our 2008 interns were:

SPRING
- Adam Talmud, East Brunswick (Solomon Schechter Day School)
- Nicole Ventura, Montvale (Bergen County Academies)
- Gisselle Casco, Prospect Park (Academy at Englewood)
- Christopher Clairmont, Jackson (Monmouth University)

SUMMER
- Ashley Smith, Roselle (Rider University)
- Rina Krevat, Clifton (Frisch School)
