The New Jersey State House

The State House was originally built in 1792 by Jonathan Doane. The building looked very different from the State House of today. It was a simple rectangular building of rubblestone with a bell tower. According to legend, the bell was rung to call people to the State House.

As the government’s duties grew, so did the State House. Many additions were made over the years. Today, the Governor’s offices are in the front of the building while the Legislature works in the restored rear wings.

What’s missing from the New Jersey State House?
Connect the dots and find out!
The dome is a well-known symbol of our state government. Over the years, the dome became damaged and repair was needed. The state recently restored the dome to its former glory. See if you can answer these dome questions.

1. The Dome ceiling is 105 feet above the floor of the Rotunda. If all the students in a class are 5 feet tall, how many students would you need to stand on top of each other in order to touch the ceiling?

2. School children helped raise about $40,000 for the repairs. This money was used to replace the gold leafing on the Dome. Exactly how many dimes were collected to raise this money?

3. It takes 4 pieces of gold leaf to cover 1 square foot of the dome. If the dome is 3,000 square feet, how many pieces of gold leaf are needed to cover the entire dome?

New Jersey’s State Seal was designed by Francis Hopkinson for our new state in the year 1777. Each of the Seal’s symbols stands for something important about New Jersey.

The helmet with its crest of a horse’s head indicates that New Jersey is a sovereign State – meaning that we make laws for ourselves.

The woman on the left is Liberty. Liberty means freedom. She holds a staff topped by a liberty cap, an important symbol of freedom. The woman on the right is the Roman goddess Ceres, who represents agriculture and prosperity. She grasps a cornucopia or “horn of plenty.”

The three horse-drawn plows on the shield, the horse’s head on the helmet and the swirls of leaves also symbolize New Jersey’s farming tradition. The scroll at the bottom bears the motto “L__ __ __ __ __ and P__ __ __ __ __ __ __ and the date __ __ __ __, the year New Jersey became a state.

(answers on page 21)
Our state has several official symbols that represent many of the things that are special about New Jersey. The Legislature chose the first official symbol, the state flower (the violet), in 1913. Since then, eight more symbols have been added.

Draw lines to connect the picture of each symbol to its name. The year after each name tells you when the New Jersey Legislature adopted the symbol. (answers on page 21)

1. Violet, State Flower, 1913
3. Red Oak, State Tree, 1950
4. Honey Bee, State Insect, 1974
5. Horse, State Animal, 1977
6. Square Dance, State Folk Dance, 1983
8. Brook Trout, State Fish, 1991
10. Blueberry, State Fruit, 2004
Here is a drawing of part of the carpet that covers the floor of the General Assembly chamber in the State House. It was designed by artists and made by skilled workers for our capitol. The rug contains pictures of some of New Jersey's important symbols. Can you identify each of the items and color them appropriately?

Fill in the blank spaces below to help you identify the state symbols, then use the color guide to help you choose the right colors for your picture of this carpet.

Know Your Legislature

What is the Legislature?

The Legislature is the branch of government that makes new laws and changes old ones.

Our State Legislature makes laws only for New Jersey. It is made up of 120 members elected from 40 regions within the state called legislative districts. These men and women represent the views and concerns of the people in their parts of the state.

What are Houses?

The New Jersey Legislature is divided into two parts, called “Houses.” The Houses of the New Jersey Legislature are the Senate and the General Assembly. There are 40 Senators and 80 General Assembly members who are elected by the voters in their legislative districts.

A legislature that consists of two houses is called “bicameral.” One state in our country has only one lawmaking unit, which means its legislature is “unicameral.” Can you name the state?

What are political parties?

The members of the two Houses are divided into groups or teams, called “political parties.” The two major parties are the Democrats and the Republicans. The group having the largest number of members is called the “majority party.” The other group is the “minority party.”

The Democratic Party mascot is the donkey. The Republican Party mascot is the elephant.
Know Your Legislature

When does our Legislature meet?

The Houses usually meet on Mondays and Thursdays all year long. Meetings to vote on proposed laws, called “bills,” are “voting sessions.” The Legislature meets in the State House in Trenton, New Jersey’s capital city. Most years, both Houses take a break or “recess” during July and August.

Who can be a legislator?

A State Senator must be at least 30 years old and must have lived in New Jersey for at least four years. A member of the General Assembly must be at least 21 years old and must have lived in the state for at least two years. Both must live in their legislative districts for one year before the election.

What are legislative districts?

New Jersey is divided into 40 regions called legislative districts. The residents of each district elect one Senator and two General Assembly members. Each legislative district has about the same number of people in it, so each legislator represents about the same number of people.

New district boundary lines are drawn every 10 years after an official count called a “census” has been taken of the people and where they live. The shapes of the districts may be changed to reflect changes in the population. City districts are usually small because many people live in a small area. Suburban and rural legislative districts may be very large, which shows residents live farther apart.
Any Senator or General Assembly member may propose or sponsor a new law. Ideas for laws can come from many sources, such as citizens, interest groups, public officials or the Governor.

At the legislator’s direction, the idea is written as a bill. The legislator may ask other legislators to become co-sponsors.

If the committee approves the bill, it is reported back to the House where it began, and its title is read again. This is the bill’s second reading.

When scheduled by the Senate President or General Assembly Speaker, the bill’s title is read for the third time, and it is debated and voted on.

A bill passes if it receives a majority of votes (at least 21 in the Senate or 41 in the General Assembly).
Becoming a Law

The bill is introduced when the Senate Secretary or General Assembly Clerk reads the bill’s number, sponsor and title aloud during a legislative session.

The bill is usually sent to a committee which studies it and makes changes, if needed. These changes are called amendments. Committees have open meetings where the public may speak about the bill.

The bill follows a similar path of first reading, committee consideration, second reading, third reading and final passage in the second House.

If the Governor rejects the bill, it is called a veto. Sometimes, the Governor will ask the Legislature to make changes to the bill. The Legislature may make the Governor’s changes. It is also possible for the Legislature to pass the vetoed bill in its original form with a 2/3 majority vote in both Houses. This is called overriding the veto.

Find out what all the buzz was about when a group of second-grade students wanted New Jersey to have a state bug. Use the words to the left to fill in the blanks and finish the story. (answers on page 22)

Mrs. Zuzov always encouraged her students to take an interest in government. In 1973, her second-grade class at Sunnybrae School had been reading about how Maryland had the butterfly as its state bug. He then promised the students that if he was reelected, he would introduce a 3.__________ to the Legislature proposing the Honey Bee as the State Bug.

After the Assemblyman won reelection, the students contacted him again and reminded him of his promise. The students visited the State House several times to check on the progress of their idea. A decision was made by the State Government 4.__________ to move the bill to the Assembly for 5.__________. The Honey Bee had become New Jersey’s official State Insect. Mrs. Zuzov and her students were very proud that they had played a part in their State’s legislative process.

Get Involved!

Look, listen and learn!
The best way to get involved is to know what’s going on. Once you hear everyone’s point of view, then it’s easier to make up your own mind.

Vote!
All citizens have the right to vote. Each New Jersey resident votes to elect one State Senator and two General Assembly members, who then make laws for us. To vote, you must be at least 18 years old and registered with the Board of Elections in your community.

Even though you may not be old enough to vote, you can still make your voice heard. Here’s how:

Talk to someone who CAN vote!
Share your feelings and ideas with your parents, neighbors, friends, relatives and community leaders.

Write a letter, call or E-mail your legislator!
Tell your lawmakers how you feel about your community and state.

Join forces!
Work with other people or groups who share your thoughts. Tell everyone to contact their legislators.

Show your support!
A petition is like a special request signed by many people and shared with your lawmakers. Citizens may also gather at public events, such as rallies, to show support for issues.

Do you have any ideas for new laws?
Are there things you want to see changed in your community? Write down two ideas that you have for laws.
New Jersey needs future legislative leaders! Remember, you must be at least 21 years old to run for office. You may be too young to run, but it’s never too early to start your campaign! That means telling lots of people about yourself and your ideas.

Buttons are a good way to get your name around! Below are some sample buttons. Try making your own and hold a pretend election in your classroom. Remember, everyone gets to vote for one Senator and two General Assembly members. Good luck!

New Jersey’s CONSTITUTION establishes the State’s government and all our laws. Our government has THREE main branches. They are the LEGISLATIVE, the EXECUTIVE, and the JUDICIAL branches. The LEGISLATURE makes the laws for all New Jersey, based on the requirements and the limits in the constitution. There are two groups, or Houses, in the Legislature — the SENATE and the GENERAL ASSEMBLY. The executive branch of government carries out the LAWS made by the Legislature. At the head of this branch is the GOVERNOR. The judicial branch of government is made up of the COURTS. This system of courts and JUDGES determines the facts, interprets the laws, settles disputes between citizens, and imposes penalties on people who break the law.
